OUR HOPE IS IN THE LORD, OUR STRENGTH EVERY MORNING

The prophet Isaiah lived through a complex and difficult time in history, not unlike ours today. It was a time of internal injustice and inequity within the kingdom of Judah. Yet it was also a time of religious revival and reform, including those led by Isaiah himself. Isaiah 33:2 assures us of hope in challenging times. “We hope in you,” Isaiah proclaims, even “in times of distress.”

In such times, we dig deep into our faith and hold on tight to hope, trusting in God to “be our strength every morning,” whether on a personal, organizational or global level. Hope is here; we never have to wait for it. Even in the most violent places of the world there are seeds of hope.

Global Ministries experienced many changes throughout 2024, both in the church and in the world. Some of these transitions, like Global Ministries’ alignment with the General Board of Higher Education and Ministry (GBHEM), could be anticipated and planned for in our work. Others, like decisions made at General Conference, will take time to live into, such as the meaning and practical enactment of the regional structure of the UMC.

Across the church, there is hope that regionalization will be ratified and will lead us into a less colonial way of being the church together. We have historically made a strong distinction between work in the United States and work in other countries, but now, we must see our work in a holistic way. One of the key shifts in the work of Global Ministries over the past few years has been a deepening engagement with our partners around the world.

In 2024, Global Ministries developed a new strategic plan for 2025-2026, which groups our mission programs and four priority areas into two broad categories going forward: Connecting the church in mission, which includes the work of missionaries and mission volunteers and the Mission Engagement unit; and Alleviating human suffering, our Global Ministries’ Global Health work and disaster response and recovery through the United Methodist Committee on Relief (UMCOR).

The formal alignment of Global Ministries and GBHEM under one general secretary transpired in the summer. Alignment will create a unified presence and an integrated structure for both agencies as they interact with partners and share information across units. This will help us best respond to and support our partners in their mission and ministry.

When we ground ourselves in hope and allow it to direct our sight, then we can see instances of people partnering together to share food and medical care. We see transformative leaders courageously leading congregations and conferences into new expressions of church. We see mission partners recommitting themselves to be in relationship with one another for the sake of serving the world.

Hope is not dependent on what is happening. We can choose hope. Christ is with us and the Holy Spirit gives us the tenacity to be a witness in our hope.

We thank God for all those who partner with us, answering God’s call to be in mission together. This report delves into some of the many impacts of the work made possible by faithful giving and strong support. We thank you, church members, donors, partners and those we serve for the hope you give us to further God’s mission every day.

Connecting the Church in Mission

Global Ministries connects the church in mission through the sending of missionaries and volunteers and by establishing churches and strengthening faith communities.

Global Missionaries

Taking church to the streets

As a missionary in Rome, Italy, the Rev. Eliad Dos Santos works with migrants coming from African countries, South America, Syria, Pakistan and Afghanistan. Often, they end up in the streets without access to social services.

Dos Santos decided to create a space outside her church to distribute food so she could talk to migrants and form relationships. This practice led to building a social service program that served the often-overlooked needs of migrants.

Today, the church in Rome is open for people to come for social services and Pastor dos Santos offers counseling sessions every week. She listens to find out what people need and how the church can be of better service.

As Christians, we are the presence of God in these people's lives, not only helping them materially, but fighting for a more just and safer world.

— The Rev. Eliad Dos Santos

Global Missionaries

Feeding the forgotten

The Rev. Jane Eesley returned to Israel-Palestine in 2023 as a Global Missionary to serve with the Methodist Liaison Office in Jerusalem. She had served in Jerusalem in the 1990s as a young adult. Within months of her arrival, violent conflict between Hamas and Israel began and has since claimed the lives of tens of thousands of people.

Eesley recommended several ministries to the United Methodist Committee on Relief (UMCOR), for grants. Shepherd Society, the outreach arm of Bethlehem Bible College, which delivers food to individuals, received a grant to supply Palestinian Christians with one meal, delivered three times a week. Shireen Awwad, the Shepherd Society's director of outreach, said recipients often spread each meal over two days or share it with their hungry neighbors as well.

Harvest in DRC

The people in the photo are from the southeastern part of Kamina in a village called Kinkunki, which is not far from Kamisamba Farm, where I work. They are mostly farmers whose livelihoods depend on their farms. Because of their financial constraints, this rural village finds it difficult to send its children to school, but when they come to Kamisamba Farm to work the harvest and learn ways to improve their crop production, their finances improve too.

Mission Volunteers

Returning to Ecuador

David and Shari Nelson serve as Mission Volunteers from Colorado. They've developed a passion for the ministry of El Sembrador school, its students and teachers. They spent two months in Pastocalle in 2023 to assist the English teacher and establish a computer lab, which has been helping the children in their classwork, and basic computer skills and literacy. They returned to Ecuador in January 2024.

Both David and Shari, lifetime Methodists, worked with the Ecuadoran Methodists to facilitate a praise team retreat to encourage church growth through strengthening faith, leadership skills and technical skills of the members of the Methodist praise teams. Forty-five musicians from across Ecuador attended the three-day event in April along with an ecumenical team from the U.S. through their home church, Broomfield United Methodist Church.

This year, we continue working with El Sembrador school and a few churches, and helping the national church create a presence on the internet.

— Shari Nelson

Since our reopening, we have distributed something like 86,000 lbs. of food, which reached about 4,500 people, or 500 different households. The volunteers are revved up and want to be here, because they know they are contributing to the lives of the clients we serve.

Multiethnic Ministries

Love and care at the pantry door

Last year, the Closet of Hope Food Pantry, a ministry of Hope-Southfield UMC in Michigan, received a Community Engagement grant from Global Ministries to enhance their supply of hygiene products and other needed items. After the COVID-19 pandemic, the mission co-chairs of the church, Jean and Preston Boyd and Michael Boggs, have worked to increase supplies, supportive partners and the clients they serve.

“We try to make sure that we see the clients and that they see the love of Christ in what we do and that they walk away with a good experience,” says Preston Boyd. “That is shown in the surveys we do. The clients say that our pantry cares and that they appreciate the love and care we show them.”

Leadership Development

Training young leaders in Southeast Asia

Methodist young adults from four Asian Mission Initiative countries of Global Ministries — Cambodia, Laos, Mongolia and Vietnam — gathered Nov. 4-8 in Phnom Penh, Cambodia, for 2024 ASCEND. Sponsored and facilitated by Global Ministries, Higher Education and Ministry and the Board of Missions of the Korean Methodist Church, the global leadership development training event provided young Christians with opportunities to learn sound and healthy leadership skills. The three-year certificate program requires participants to meet quarterly online and in-person each November.

I learned a lot about myself, leadership and education, which taught me what is good or not good to lead. As I go back to Mongolia, I want to study leadership in youth ministries and organizations.

Mission Initiatives

Flourishing churches in Vietnam and Cambodia

Global Ministries’ Vietnam Mission Initiative announced its intention to become independent following General Conference. Mission initiatives are not intended to stay mission initiatives forever; the goal is to establish churches that can either function independently or become full, regular parts of the UMC structure. The Cambodia Mission Initiative announced its autonomy earlier in the year.

310 NATIONALS IN MISSION WERE SERVING AT THE END OF 2024 AND $1,245,249.38 WAS AWARDED IN NIM GRANTS.

I come from very humble circumstances. This scholarship is crucial to my life.

— Garakai Malunga

Scholarships

Thankfulness overflows

Professor Garakai Malunga (center) is a 2024 World Communion Scholar studying for a Doctor of Philosophy in Public Health at Africa University in Zimbabwe. At 49 years old, he may not be the typical scholar, but he has a deep appreciation for receiving a scholarship at this time in his life. His research combines both public health and biomedical science. He is investigating two indigenous herbs traditionally used by people experiencing malaria symptoms and interviewing people who have used this remedy to understand the effectiveness and side effects of the herbs. He will then conduct laboratory tests on actual malaria parasites to evaluate toxicity and efficacy of the herbs.

Alleviating Human Suffering

Global Ministries alleviates human suffering by providing humanitarian relief and improving community health globally.

Health Systems Strengthening

UMC facilities respond to mpox

With support from Global Ministries, UMC health boards and facilities were equipped to respond to an mpox outbreak in DRC, providing essential medical care and education about the virus. The collaboration between health boards and local community leaders, like UMC pastors, played a crucial role in addressing this public health challenge, focusing on prevention, treatment and education to safeguard the health of vulnerable populations.

Before, I didn't know what mpox was, let alone differentiate it from other skin diseases. Now I can recognize the symptoms and know what to do if I notice them in myself or someone else in my family.

Maternal, Newborn and Child Health

Protecting pregnant women from malaria

Part of prenatal care at the Nganza Health Center in DRC — and for most United Methodist facilities partnering with Global Ministries — is a routine course of malaria prophylactics, much like what travelers take to avoid contracting it. Women also receive a long-lasting insecticide-treated bed net upon arrival at the center, and the combination generally keeps them free of malaria throughout pregnancy. This greatly improves the likelihood of delivering a healthy baby.

Water, Sanitation and Hygiene

Well repair led by women in South Sudan

I am here to represent women and show our community that women, just like men, can play an important role in driving community development.

Normally, when a well breaks down in South Sudan and there are no technicians and no parts available, it may be weeks, or even years before a repair crew arrives. The Women's Well Repair Initiative provides a solution.

Through economic resources, self-sustainability and women's participation in community initiatives, the health care, education and overall stability for communities in which it works increases.

Churches nominate candidates, like Julia, a mother of three in Alok whose husband is absent. Her pastor described her as "someone who bore the weight of suffering most acutely within her community." The congregation voted unanimously to nominate her for the training.

Two key partners involved in this training project, Water is Basic (WIB) and Women's Empowerment Solutions Initiative (WESI) of South Sudan, designed the program to reach 300+ communities in Bhar el-Ghazal.

HUMANITARIAN RELIEF AND RECOVERY

Disaster Response

Hope after Hurricane Helene

Shortly after Hurricane Helene inundated communities in Western North Carolina with 12 inches to nearly three feet of rain in September, Spruce Pine United Methodist Church became a hub for disaster relief. Every square foot of the church was used in service to the community. It offered a food pantry, water, a clothing closet and baby supplies. The Western North Carolina Disaster Response office asked if the church would be willing to host UMC Early Response Teams (ERTs) making plans to travel to the region. Within days, UMCOR awarded the conference a grant to support relief efforts.

$37,619,705 IN TOTAL DOLLARS

Environmental Sustainability and Disaster Response

Mobile solar trailers deployed in Georgia

This was the first time we deployed our entire solar array! We had just one panel left in the trailer as a spare. The quiet, clean, renewable energy fueled the heart of the camp. It powered lighting, refrigeration, air conditioning and more.

Disaster Response

Support and relief for Gaza

UMCOR support for relief work in Gaza includes large grants that further the work of partners who can implement large scale distribution of food, water, personal hygiene and other non-food items. Grants also support health care and health facilities that have managed to remain open inside Gaza. Smaller grants of equal importance support organizations that can mount small-scale projects to reach specific vulnerable populations with targeted relief.

Contributions to large-scale relief efforts since October 2023 have provided, whenever possible, food rations, fresh food, water, nonfood items such as shelter supplies, hygiene supplies and medical care. Some have also helped with counseling and information sessions about health, wellbeing and avoiding live munitions.

The people of Gaza have experienced suffering so deep that it will be felt for generations to come. Tens of thousands of civilians have been killed, families and whole communities displaced, and almost all infrastructure including homes, hospitals and schools destroyed.

— Roland Fernandes, Global Ministries General Secretary

Disaster Response

Care after triple disasters in the Philippines

In one barangay, the flooding reached up to the neck of the average person. Small boats had to be used to transport goods and people, and it affected everyone. I spoke with a pastor there and he said there is still water on the roads after three months.

— The Rev. Joseph Estadilla, District Superintendent and Dean of the Cabinet, Manila Episcopal Area

Late in the summer of 2024, fishing villages and even inland towns in the Bay of Manila were affected by a triple calamity. Typhoon Carina, a southwest monsoon and oil spills from three different tankers in the same week strained the capacity of communities to recover. The Manila Episcopal Area Disaster Management Office (MEA DMO) supported by UMCOR, assessed the triple disasters and sent out a “call to action.” Churches took a special offering and gave direct aid by distributing food and water. The MEA DMO created a committee to maximize and ensure a coordinated response for local churches and annual conferences.

Global Migration

Meeting Christ at the table

Legacy United Methodist Church in Bismarck, North Dakota, received an UMCOR Mustard Seed Migration Grant to support Ukrainian immigrants in their community. The church held inter-cultural cooking classes so that congregants and community members could teach each other recipes from their home country, creating unity in food and table fellowship despite language barriers.

Wow, I just did a little thing, and it brought so much. Opportunities like this are a great conduit to serve and do God's work.

— Kenton Carlson, Legacy UMC church member

Vital aid for flood survivors

In Tanzania, devastating floods affected thousands at the end of 2023 and into 2024. The disaster displaced families and damaged homes and places of worship. UMCOR mobilized to provide essential aid, working alongside local partners to deliver food, clean water, hygiene supplies and shelter materials to those in need.

UMCOR was the first organization to come to our aid, and support was distributed to everyone, without discrimination . . . Many Masai have joined the UMC after witnessing this generosity and compassion.”

— Emanuel Matita, resident of the Masai district

Agriculture and Livelihoods

New greenhouses in Zimbabwe fuel education

Two greenhouses at The United Methodist Church's Hanwa Mission are helping to fight climate change and improve education at the mission's schools. With support from Zimbabwe Volunteers in Mission and Global Ministries' Yambasu Agriculture Initiative (YAI), the Hanwa community constructed two half-acre greenhouses. YAI also supplied fencing, a hand tractor, a trailer, a plow and pedi-wheels as well as pepper seedlings. Each greenhouse generates significant revenue and creates employment for parents of students.

These greenhouses will become a major component of the agricultural curriculum at the Hanwa Mission schools, and a major proportion of the fund generated by this project will go directly back into the schools.

— Charlie Moore, Zimbabwe Volunteers in Mission team leader, Baltimore-Washington Conference

GENERAL CONFERENCE

At the long-awaited 2020 General Conference of The United Methodist Church in Charlotte, North Carolina, April 23 - May 3, 2024, Global Ministries submitted 23 petitions for consideration by 765 worldwide delegates. Each petition passed with overwhelming majority in committee and was formally approved by full plenary action.

The passing of these petitions affirmed Global Ministries and UMCOR’s mandate to work in partnership with congregations, conferences, organizations and individuals as they engage in God’s mission in their local contexts.

Areas of work within this body of legislation included religious freedom; peace and justice; global migration; hunger and poverty; disaster recovery; HIV and AIDS; Deaf and Hard of Hearing ministries; and racial and ethnic ministries.

During General Conference, Global Ministries also celebrated 200 years of mission and marked several milestones: 5 million children reached through the Abundant Health Initiative; 80 years of UMCOR; commissioning of 16 new United Methodist missionaries; and strengthening of partnerships in Latin America and the Caribbean.
